Before you begin ...

Here are 5 powerful questions parents can ask to dig deeper into a child's answers, encouraging them to elaborate and share more about their thoughts and feelings:

"Can you tell me more about that?"

Invites your child to expand on their initial response, prompting more details or emotions.

"What happens next?"

Encourages your child to continue their story or idea, especially for imaginative or sequential thoughts.

"How did that make you feel?"

Dives into the emotional impact of their answer, helping uncover their inner perspective.

"Why do you think that is?"

Prompts your child to reflect on the reasoning or cause behind their thoughts, fostering deeper insight.

"What's the most exciting part about that for you?"

Focuses on what excites or motivates them, drawing out enthusiasm and personal connection to their answer.

These questions are open-ended and versatile, helping you build stronger connections by showing genuine interest in your child's world.
